

Abstract of the Disclosure

A method for teaching an individual to speak correctly using novel visual displays and supporting descriptive material. The visual display comprises a string of discreet visual segments illustrating volume, pace, pitch, melody and tone that guide the individual in creating specific sounds and speech patterns. The visual displays can be published in a book or pamphlet from or in electronic media such as CD, CD-Rom, DVD, or video.